The Grace Hopper Celebration India (GHCI) is the country’s largest technical conference for women. It is produced by the Anita Borg Institute (ABI) India in partnership with the Association for Computing Machinery (ACM) India. GHC was co-founded by Dr. Anita Borg and Dr. Telle Whitney in 1994 in the US, inspired by the legacy of Admiral Grace Murray Hopper. Since 2010, women come to GHCI every year for inspiration, to build connections, and to give or receive guidance to strengthen their careers in tech. GHCI is a celebration of women who transform technology. In 2016, GHCI reached more women than ever before.

The information in this report comprises responses collected from attendees and sponsor organizations who responded to the GHCI 16 post-conference survey.

GHCI shapes the conversation about women technologists

Increased press coverage and social media engagement

GHCI 16 IN THE PRESS

This was unlike most tech conferences in the city, where you see a sea of men and a sprinkling of women. The 7th annual edition of Grace Hopper Celebration of Women in Computing India (GHCI) saw nearly 3,000 women technologists from across the country converging at a private convention center in north Bengaluru.
